Name of the book: Wadajir baa awood leh

Subject: (Children Folktale with Beautiful Illustrations)-) In "Wadajir baa awood leh" is part of the reading series ARDAA. A beautifully illustrated full-colour book for young readers. The story tells of a universal story, that we are stronger together and Somalis have a number of proverbs to signify this, loosely translated it is said that: One finger does not wash a face. Another proverb says; Two hands are needed to harvest. In the Horn of the African savannah begins this tale of three bulls and a lion. A story of friendship and long standing enemies. Will the bulls fall into the lion's trap or will they wizen to his plot. Read on and find out if they outwit their nemesis or whether divided their fate is sealed. The story "Wadajir baa awood leh" is retold by Author: Cabdiraxmaan Maxamed Abtidoon

Bertankii caanka ahaa (the famous competition)

This is one of the popular Somali folktales passed from generation to generation. The competition is between fox and a turtle. Any one of them who wins the competition will be rewarded a nice house. Turtle is known for his character as a slow going animal at the same a patient and persistent. Fox is known for to be a cunning predator. How dare you can compete with me while you are so slow, said fox. Fox slept under tree confident that no matter what slow turtle does, she will eventually win the race. The turtle kept going until she wake up when the turtle was about to reach the final destination. Finally he was awarded the nice house. The moral of the story is not to underestimate any body. The book has beautiful and colorful illustrations.
